

Bio Sheet

David Gerber, MEd., specializes in professional development, curriculum design, training, Conflict Management, and leadership coaching. He has worked with business owners, CEO's, Air Force Colonel's/Supervisors, business development directors, doctors, lawyers, engineers and senior educators in a coaching, training and consulting capacity. His goal is always to help individuals improve their personal, professional and organizational abilities. His expertise spans the areas of conflict resolution and organizational problem solving, team building, group facilitation, Interest-Based Negotiations, diversity education, communication and beyond. Dave trains for the United States and local governments, corporations, associations, non-profits, medical practices and school systems. He has hands on experience working with thousands of training participants and students of all ages, races, backgrounds and ability levels.

David received a bachelor's degree in Sociology from Ithaca College (NY), a master's degree in education from St. Joseph's University (Philadelphia) and a Senior Executive Leadership certificate from Georgetown University (D.C.). He has certificates in Workplace Conflict Processes, Workplace Mediation and Conflict Resolution, Commercial, Federal Workplace and Family Mediation from the Northern Virginia Mediation Service at George Mason. Dave brings 12 years of varied conflict management, teaching, coaching and educator-training experience as well. His passionate and motivating style is contagious. Additionally, he has a great understanding of how people work, how to expand upon their potential and how to motivate and inspire them to action. He is dedicated to people and relationships and truly enjoys helping diverse work and academic environments prevent, manage and resolve conflict.